Practical information

Accommodation

Accommodation is included in the participation fee. Participants are assigned a room upon arrival and may be asked to share a room with someone else.

Venue

Overlooking Lake Geneva, the former Caux-Palace Hotel became an international Conference Centre in 1946.

Meals

Breakfast, lunch and dinner are included in the participation fee and are served at the Conference Centre itself.

Miscellaneous

Internet is available. A special characteristic of the Caux conferences is the communal life.

In small groups, the day's subjects are consolidated in an atmosphere of trust and mutual respect.

Groups participate in practical house-keeping tasks and get to know each other even better.
